Detailed Action

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. The following is a quotation of 37 CFR 1.71(a)-(c):

(a) The specification must include a written description of the invention or discovery and of the manner and process of making and using the same, and is required to be in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art or science to which the invention or discovery appertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same.

(b) The specification must set forth the precise invention for which a patent is solicited, in such manner as to distinguish it from other inventions and from what is old. It must describe completely a specific embodiment of the process, machine, manufacture, composition of matter or improvement invented, and must explain the mode of operation or principle whenever applicable. The best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention must be set forth.

(c) In the case of an improvement, the specification must particularly point out the part or parts of the process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter to which the improvement relates, and the description should be confined to the specific improvement and to such parts as necessarily cooperate with it or as may be necessary to a complete understanding or description of it.

3. The specification is objected to under 37 CFR 1.71 because the subject matter of Cls. 2, 4, and 10 is not fully disclosed.

The feature of "...a curved surface having a curvature greater than the curvature of the rotary drum..." are not specifically and succinctly described in the specification ... although these terms/phrases appear in numerous part of the specification, they are not combined and organized therein to allow one of ordinary skill in the art to ascertain exactly the process envisioned by applicant of performing the claimed method; i.e. the skilled artisan would not know how to pick-and-choose through all of the different parts of the specification to identify how to practice the claimed invention.

4. Claims 2,4, and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §112, first paragraph, as directed to subject matter which was not described in the specification in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the invention. See previous paragraph.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Maruyama et al (USPN 6,108,165) shows a an entire smooth flat surface or smooth curved surface having a curvature greater than the curvature of the rotary drum .
